RHS Eagle Football Team a Real Success, Despite Playoff Loss

By Jesse Meriweather, Athletic Director, Romulus Community Schools

Although the Romulus High School Eagles were defeated in their recent encounter against Walled Lake Western on Saturday, November 14, their very appearance in this State playoff game – a first in the history of the Romulus football program – was an undeniable victory for the team.

Almost from the start, the contest was a good one. After Walled Lake took the opening kickoff and marched straight down the field to score, defense was the name of the game for both teams. The remainder of the game saw only one more score – a Walled Lake field goal.

Both teams played hard, and the final tally of 10-0 may not indicate just how well-matched this game was. In fact, weather, rather than skill, was probably the deciding factor in the scoring. The slippery field conditions hindered the Eagles in their "sweeps around end" strategy and resulted in short gains for Romulus, but had less of an effect on Walled Lake's power-driving back, Ronnie Gilbert, who plowed straight ahead behind his big line.

Our Romulus Eagles deserve a hearty congratulations on their successful season of play. Hopefully, Saturday's match was just the beginning of a football future filled with promise. □

AAA: Turkey-time Travelers To "Gobble Up" Mileage

Thanksgiving is regarded as one of the busiest holiday travel times of the year – and this year is no exception, AAA Michigan reports.

While a soft economy remains, all signs point to Michiganders on the move – traveling by car, plane, bus, and train.

For many, the destination is "home" to visit with family and friends; for others, short, three- and four-day holiday cruises are the ticket.

The AAA Michigan Touring Department reports that, from January through September, 395,023 TripTik routings were issued – up to eight percent over the corresponding period for 1991 – and no letup is anticipated.

The official 102-hour Thanksgiving holiday begins at 6 p.m. Wednesday, November 25, and ends at midnight Sunday, November 29, when peak travel is expected.

Police and Michigan Department of Transportation officials say that vehicle traffic will be moderate, but add that snow in some regions could bring out additional numbers of both skiers and snowmobilers.

Spokespersons for the major carriers differ in predicting the extent of holiday travel, but all say that it will equal or better that of last year.

While the airfare wars of last summer are over and prices are generally higher, advance airline bookings are recommended to guarantee seats on desired flights. Space is still available, particularly for those travelers with flexible schedules.

According to Diane Willard, vice-president of AAA Travel Agency, Florida resort areas are heavily booked, but other major-city availability is good.

"If you are traveling by air, it is important to make sure that you check in early and try to have your travel agent get you advance seat assignments and/or boarding passes prior to the day of departure," she stated.

Greyhound Bus Lines reports that its Thanksgiving business generally focuses on shorter trips, made mostly by college students returning to campus. It urges patrons to check in at least one hour before departure and travel with a minimum amount of luggage.

Amtrak says that rail ridership overall this year is expected to be up from 1991. It encourages travelers to make reservations early and to avoid the peak travel days and times – Wednesday, November 25, and Sunday, November 29. Some coach space is still available, though some sleeping accommodations may not be.

Michigan drivers will find gas plentiful and selling within a penny or two of last year's prices. A recent check showed self-serve regular unleaded averaging $1.073 per gallon in Metro Detroit and $1.119 out-State.

On a somber note, AAA Michigan reports that last year, 13 persons died in 10 accidents on State roads during the holiday weekend – down from 19 in 1990. Of 12 victims with safety-belts available, all but one were unbuckled. Only one of the accidents involved alcohol. □

WSU Sophomore Athlete Award Goes to Romulus Graduate

Saturday, November 1, 1992, was a proud day for Janet and Larry Daniel of Romulus, as their daughter Jennifer was awarded a plaque for achieving the highest grade-point average (GPA) of any sophomore athlete at Wayne State University (WSU).

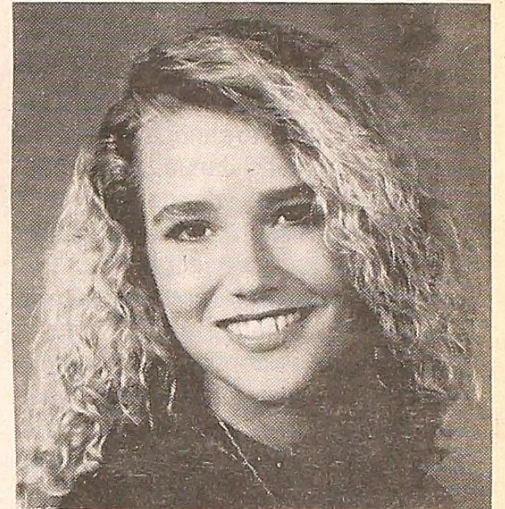

Gary Bryce, head coach of the WSU softball team, presented the award to Jennifer during the halftime break of the Wayne State–St. Joseph's College football game.

Jennifer was the 1991 Scholar-Athlete Award recipient at Romulus High School, where she finished third in her class with a 3.83 GPA.

Since attending Wayne State University, Jennifer has maintained a GPA of 3.72, but, until Saturday, she did not realize that her accomplishments were the highest of the Class of 1995's student-athletes.

Jennifer and seven of her teammates also received an award for their scholastic achievements from the School's athletic director, since Wayne State places a great deal of emphasis on their athletes' academic success.

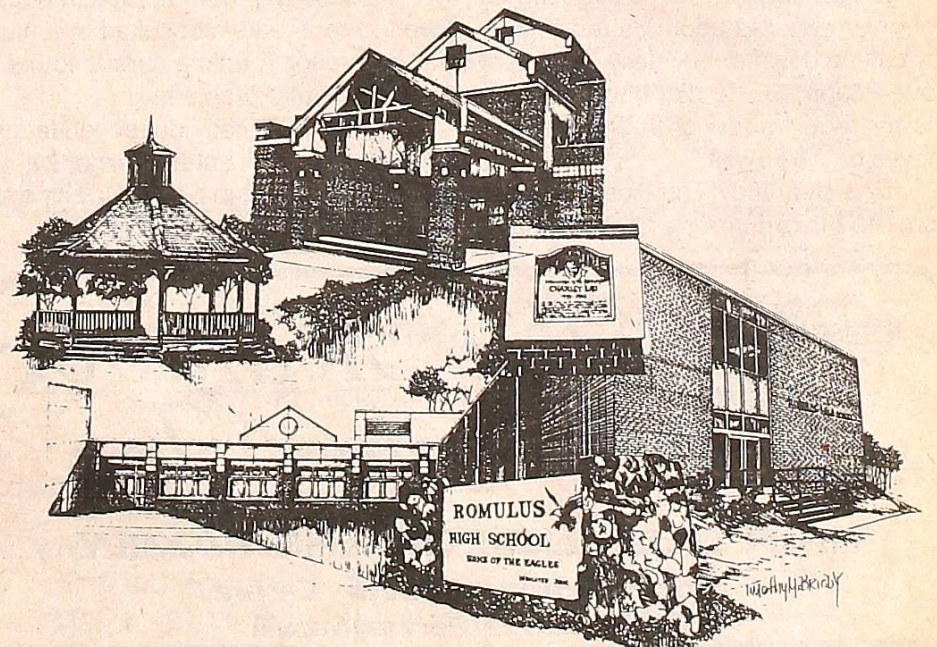

And Jennifer's athletic accomplishments for Coach Bryce have been as phenomenal as her academic achievements. She earned the team's Defensive Player of the Year award and, along with her teammates, recently received a ring from the University to represent her involvement in the NCAA Softball Regional Finals last spring. Wayne State's softball team finished eighth in the Country last season, and Coach Bryce believes that, since the team will be returning virtually the same lineup as last year's, they could be ranked in the Top Five this season.

Congratulations, Jennifer Daniel, on both your academic and athletic accomplishments, and good luck in your future endeavors. □

Community Invited To Athletic Facility's Grand Opening

Romulus Community Schools is proud to invite the entire community to its Grand Opening for the District's new Athletic Complex. The ceremony, which is scheduled for Saturday, November 21, from 12 to 6 p.m., will feature a variety of events, including a presentation by the High School dance class (1 p.m.), practice basketball (2 p.m.) and volleyball (3 p.m.) games, band music, and a number of speakers. Call 941-2170 for information. □

The Lighter Slice

Some Old Thoughts

By Tom Shamanski

Bill Clinton's recent election as President of the United States came as quite a jolt to me. Never mind the fact that he's presently limited as far as dealing with foreign affairs is concerned. And never mind the fact that, incredibly, he can survive without inhaling.

For me, all that stuff is of little consequence. What's got me depressed — as depressed as I get during that time of the month when I have to sandblast my oven — is that, beginning January 20, 1993, our President will be younger than I am.

But I have taken measures to face this dilemma and to reject the fact that I'm getting older and, according to Dr. Ruth, not much better. As Clinton has assembled a Presidential transition team to ease him into the duties and responsibilities of being President, I, too, have formed a team of sorts — one that will help me forget that I'm getting older.

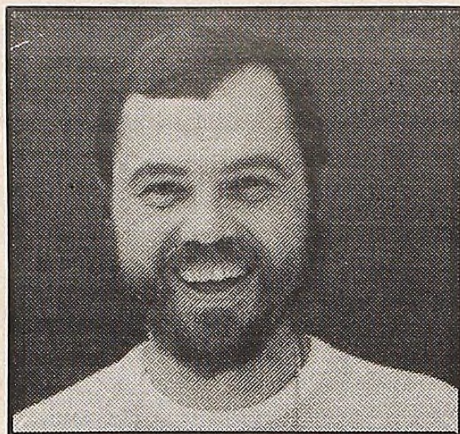

The first member of my "never-get-old" team is Orville Redenbacher, founder of the Redenbacher popcorn empire. Orville's in wonderful health, it's true; but, on one of my recent visits to his home, I noticed that, every time Orville moved, something popped.

After figuring out that it was he — and not his popcorn — that was popping, I felt somewhat better, as the only time I pop is when I'm at a restaurant with a friend who refuses to pick up the tab.

Our nation's perpetual teenager, Dick Clark, is the second member of my team. When I saw him awhile back, he suggested that I put on my blue suede shoes and chantilly lace, and listen only to rock-n-roll songs written before 1959. This, he explained, would allow me to block out everything that's happened in the world since Fats Domino first went "Walkin'."

Unfortunately, Dick's advice seemed not only nutty, but about as feasible as my cutting down on my daily dosage of Love Potion #9. He did, however, help me nail down a few of the more tricky moves of "The Twist."

My sister, Judy The Boss, has become the third team member. Actually,

The Boss has been helping me feel young for years; that's because, when we're together, she's constantly telling me that I act like a little kid, and when the heck am I going to grow up? Gee, and I'd always thought she was giving me a hard time.

The next team member that I went to see was Phyllis Diller. As she's had more plastic surgery than a fumble-fingered demolitions expert, I thought that she could give me some insight into the benefits of face lifts.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" she laughed when she saw me for the first time. "With all that extra flab on your face, if you do have a face lift, you'll only be able to see where you've been!"

Well, I thought that her comment was a little rude, so I told her that researchers have found that you can eliminate facial wrinkles by spreading Preparation H all over your face. Soon after, she dropped out of the team.

The final members of my "never-get-old" team will be children under age five. It's a well-known fact that, if you have young companions, you're more likely to feel young, yourself. Besides, kids may make up the only segment of our society that I'm capable of understanding.

In case the team approach doesn't work, I've already consulted a guy who freezes people until a cure is found for their particular problem.

"Now, what can I do for you today?" he asked when I entered his office.

"Well, I want to be . . . Say, is it a bit chilly in here, or is it just me?" □

Mayor's Drug Task Force Sponsors PRIDE Training

By Barb Farrah, BA, Prevention Project Coordinator, the Romulus Help Center

The Romulus Mayor's Substance Abuse Prevention Task Force sponsored a PRIDE (National Parents Resource Institute for Drug Education) Parent to Parent training for eight Romulus parents on Saturday, October 24. The session took place at the Romulus Holiday Inn from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Parent to Parent is a workshop for parents, training the participants in the skills, attitudes, and abilities that they may need to get their children through the adolescent years without significant alcohol or other drug use. In the event that his/her child does develop an alcohol or other drug problem, the participant is presented with a framework for recognizing the problem and dealing with it effectively. PRIDE produced the Parent to Parent workshop with the firm conviction that alcohol, other drugs, and the drug-culture's destruction of children can be stopped . . . by informed, trained, committed parents . . . and by them alone. The objective of Parent to Parent is to help kids across America have the kind of parent that they so desperately need . . . and deserve . . . and want.

Coordination between the Mayor's Task Force, Romulus Help Center (with funding provided by DCC/SEMSAS), the Romulus Public Housing Commission, and the Wayne County Regional Educational Services Agency (WC RESA) made the day a success. Transportation for the parents was provided by the Romulus Recreation Department, and child care was provided at the Saints City Development Center. The participating Romulus parents not only enjoyed the educational experience, but were also able to enjoy the company of their fellow neighbors over lunch and conversation.

The Romulus Mayor's Substance Abuse Prevention Task Force meets the second Tuesday of each month at 2 p.m. Interested citizens are encouraged to attend. For information, call 942-7571. □

"Your Children Are Our Greatest Concern"

Romulus Profile: Evelyn Atkins

By Tom Shamanski

Most of the people in Romulus know Evelyn Atkins as the editor and publisher of "the little paper" — The Romulus News. What most of them are probably unaware of is the fact that, from 1950 to 1985, the 51-year-old Atkins earned her living by singing and playing country music.

When asked which field — publishing or country music — she most enjoyed, the 20-year Romulus resident said, "It's hard to say because what has made both professions special to me is the people with whom I work. Overall, though, I'd have to say that country music is my first love."

Atkins met the man who was to share both of her career passions — her third husband, Dave Atkins — in 1977, when he called and invited her to sing with him on his upcoming recording session. At that time, Dave, a local country-music artist, had just begun publishing a newspaper called Country in the City News. Dave and Evelyn married in 1980 and, as they became more deeply involved in the many facets of the publishing industry, the two quit the entertainment business in 1985 and opened Nite-Lite Graphics, a Romulus print and graphics firm.

In July 1987, Dave put out the first issue of The Romulus News.

"Dave got itchy feet," smiled Atkins,

"and decided to start a local newspaper. He wanted to give the people of Romulus more coverage of the strictly local news that larger papers wouldn't print because they didn't have the time or the space."

The newspaper was well received by the community from the very start, and Dave — whose folksy approach to "tell-it-like-it-is" reporting often made him a figure of controversy — remained the driving force behind "the little paper" until he died in July 1991.

After Dave's death — the result of a massive heart-attack — Atkins had to choose between carrying on with the then-four-year-old newspaper, or leaving the publishing business and finding another means to earn her livelihood. Characteristically, she chose to carry on.

"With the help of a lot of friends," Atkins said, "my daughter Kristi and I have been able to continue putting out the Paper."

She added that, although Dave has been gone for a year and a half now, she feels that these days are still a transition period for her.

"Kristi has always been an excellent typesetter and editorial coordinator," she explained, "but it's been difficult for me because I had no previous experience as a reporter, photographer, or salesman. I've had to assume many additional responsibilities in the past 16 months, and, although I've already learned a lot, I've still got a long way to go."

In fact, it's because Atkins must wear so many hats in her small organization that she has had to rely on others in the community to submit many of the stories for the News. Thankfully, Romulus residents have been extremely willing to contribute articles about their local activities and thereby take advantage of the Paper's "hometown news" format.

Since taking over The Romulus News, Atkins has skillfully guided the Paper to function as more of a "community information resource," with less emphasis on "hard" City news. I asked her to comment.

"Because Romulus is part of a large metropolitan area, typical 'news' items receive plenty of media coverage from local TV stations and the area's several major newspapers. I feel that, by featuring news about the achievements of and the events concerning everyday Romulus people, 'the little paper' offers a rather unique public service."

In 1950, at the tender age of nine, Evelyn embarked on her country-music career. She, like the other children who lived in her Versailles, Kentucky neighborhood, started her day in school; at lunchtime, however, she would grab a quick, on-the-go meal on her way to the local radio station to perform a live show with her father's band. She returned to school when the show was over.

Two years later, Clark moved his musical operations to the Detroit area. Soon, Evelyn was again performing with her father's band on live radio and, subsequently, on live television.

"We played at a barn dance every Saturday night at the UAW Hall on Mack Avenue," Atkins explained, "and the show was carried live by one of Detroit's major radio stations, WJR. We also did a live broadcast on WJR radio every weekday morning."

It was after he heard the Band's WJR radio program that a local sponsor approached them to do a weekly appearance on TV Channel 9, Windsor's primary television station. After a five-year stint with Channel 9, the Group moved to a Detroit television station, WXYZ—Channel 7, for a six-month run.

In 1959, Clark moved his family and the Band to radio station WNAX in Yankton, South Dakota.

"I was 17 years old when we moved to Yankton," Atkins stated. "On WNAX, we did morning, noon, and evening shows. The morning and evening shows were taped, but the noon shows were live. Since I was still in school, we worked out a system where, at lunchtime, there was a cab waiting for me at the school to take me to the studio. After the show, the taxi would bring me back to school so that I could finish my classes.

"It was also in Yankton," she continued, "that I met Michael Stephens, whom I later married. Mike and I had two daughters before we separated."

When Atkins was 20 years old, the family group moved back to Detroit — this time, to stay. It was after this move that, one by one, three other family members joined the Band — making it, at one point, an exclusive family venture.

"First," said Atkins, "my brother Billy joined us. He was a vocalist and steel-guitar player, and was really a very fine musician. Then, in 1966, the man who was to become my second husband (in 1969), Mickey Kreutzer, came to us. Finally, my other brother, Mike, joined with us in 1969.

"It was a wonderful time in my life," she recalled.

However, from 1971 to 1978, the closely knit family suffered through three major tragedies: the first, the death of her brother Mike in 1971; the second, the death of her husband Mickey, 33, in 1973; and finally, her brother Billy's death in 1978.

Said Atkins, "After the deaths of my husband and brothers, I kept performing — although, for a time, my heart wasn't really in it. When Dave and I finally stopped playing in 1985, I was definitely ready to quit."

And so a 35-year career of many highlights — including opening shows for (and sometimes playing with) such country-music greats as Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings, Porter Wagoner and Dolly Parton, Johnny Cash, Loretta Lynn, Roy Orbison, Ernest Tubb, Roy Acuff, Carl Perkins, Buddy Emmons, the Osborne Brothers, the Everly Brothers, Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs, Bill Monroe, Grandpa Jones, and Minnie Pearl (just to name a few) — came to an end.

When asked what part of her career she had found most rewarding, Atkins said, "At two different times — once in 1975 and once in 1976 — my brother Billy and I did USO tours with my father's band. In 1975, we played for American troops in Panama, Puerto Rico, and Cuba, as well as on many other West Indies islands like Barbados and Nassau. In 1976, we performed in South Korea, Japan, Okinawa, the Philippines, Guam, Hawaii, and several other islands in the South Pacific.

"I can't begin to tell you what an overwhelming experience these tours were," she continued. "I learned so much about other cultures, other forms of government . . . other people. And what I learned allowed me to come back home and see my own life and my own country from a fresh, more appreciative point of view.

"Of course, the most fulfilling part of the tours was the opportunity to entertain American servicemen and -women. It was a great privilege to be able to serve those who serve us."

Recently, Atkins has begun a new project: the rebirth of Country in the City News (CCN), which her husband Dave published for eight years. After a seven-year hiatus, Atkins has resumed publication of the monthly newspaper, which is devoted to Local, Regional, and National country-music news.

"Bringing back CCN is a very exciting project," Atkins said. "Right now, we're working on our third issue, and we already have distribution points from Waterford to Toledo, and from Flint to the Detroit River. It has been extremely well received – readers are just grabbing it up!"

"Eventually," she added, "I would like to see CCN become the country-music publication in all of Michigan."

Atkins, a Romulus High School graduate, was married to her husband Dave for 12 years before his untimely death. Her father, Casey Clark, continues – at the age of 74 – to both lead his own band and promote other country-music artists. Mary Clark, Atkins' mother, is 72 years old; she writes the regular "Sassy Seniors" column for The Romulus News, and resides at Romulus Tower apartments. Atkins' only sister, Carol, has earned the rank of lieutenant with the Michigan Department of Corrections.

Atkins has four adult children, all living in Romulus. An indispensable part of The Romulus News, 32-year-old Kristi was co-valedictorian of Romulus High School's Class of 1978 and attended Michigan State University.

Jalaina, 25, is a licensed cosmetologist currently working in Riverview. She has a one-year-old daughter, Danielle.

Mickey II, a 22-year-old musician and artist, and his wife Ann have two children: Mickey III, age three, and Briana, age one.

Lisa, the baby at 21, is a certified word-processor who currently works as a homemaker. Her four children are Christopher, who is six years old; Ronald, age four; Amanda, three; and Samantha, one.

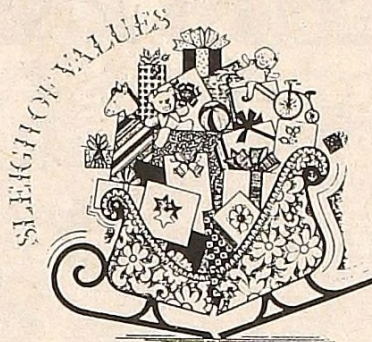

When not rushing to meet continually recurring newspaper deadlines, Evelyn likes to read and study the Bible and other books about religion. She particularly enjoys sipping a cup of coffee as she gazes at a crackling blaze in her family-room fireplace.

Naturally, having written for Evelyn for some time now, I certainly didn't need an interview to know what kind of a person she truly is.

To me, Evelyn is more than an editor; she is a good friend – and I don't use that word lightly. Evelyn, with her warm personality and genuine concern for others, is the type of friend with whom I can comfortably share my thoughts and feelings. In this, I feel, I'm very lucky.

... And so are the many others who are privileged to call Evelyn Atkins "Friend." □

What Does It Cost To Quit Smoking?

By Todd Hauter, certified hypnotherapist
(313-941-7084)

I am often asked, "What does it cost to quit smoking?"

First of all, let's analyze the cost of continuing to smoke: one carton of cigarettes will cost between $14 and $18. The average smoker burns up approximately two packs a day. Two smokers in a household will spend approximately $32 per week for cigarettes. That's more than $128 a month – about $1,664 a year!

According to Ami Tarwaci of Wyandotte, who handles Citizens Home Insurance, the nonsmoker gets a 10% discount on his/her policy.

Steve Hacker of Southfield, a health-insurance salesman, says that the cost of medical coverage for a smoker is about 20% to 25% higher than the cost for a nonsmoker.

And, on average, the nonsmoker saves about 10% on his life-insurance policies.

In other words, the nonsmoker is looking at a savings of more than $2,500 each year – even before adding in the savings on his/her life insurance. (I realize that we're talking ball-park figures here, because there are too many unknown factors for each individual – but I'm probably in the neighborhood for most smokers. Take a little time to figure out what your own savings would be.)

Now, let's rephrase our original question: "How much does it cost to keep smoking?"

Keep an eye out for my next article; I'll be discussing just how much you could make on that approximately-$3,000-a-year savings over a 20-year period. □

Letters to the Editor

California Visitor Sees Romulus as a Model Town

During the week of September 18, 1992, I was visiting my sister, Marge Lawson, who lives at the Romulus Tower. It had been many years since I had visited Michigan, and my return brought me to your fine city. Everyone I met was extremely cordial, and everyone treated me very well.

During my stay in Romulus, I had a slight health problem that took me into the Family Pharmacy. Mr. Ken Whise, the pharmacist and proprietor, assisted me and advised me to talk to a physician before buying any of the pharmacy's products. His honesty and straightforward approach was very professional. Another plus for Romulus!

I then went to see Dr. Everingham, who took immediate care of me and assured me that the problem was not serious.

It seemed that, wherever I went in your city, I felt welcomed. Even the local market, called IGA, made shopping a pleasure.

Your city could be a role-model for any city in the United States of America, as far as I am concerned.

Thank you again. I enjoyed Romulus and I intend to return for another visit.

Sincerely,
Earl H. Lewis
San Mateo, California

On Friday, November 13, I had the opportunity to attend the Community United Methodist Church's annual Christmas Luncheon, thanks to the generosity of Mrs. Josephine Rehkoph, who gave me tickets for the event.

The Luncheon, a fund-raising event put on by the ladies of the Church, was extremely well attended. I was very pleased to see so many familiar faces present—not just members of the Church, but City and School employees, local businessmen, and everyday citizenry, as well.

Wouldn't it be nice if all our community events were so successful? Maybe that's something we could all work toward.

Sincerely,
Dolores Witzgall, owner

The festivities will begin at 5:30 p.m. on Friday, December 4, when the Romulus Historical Museum will open its doors to allow citizens a glimpse of Christmas past. Then, at 6:30 p.m., local Girl Scout troops will lead the holiday caroling around the Park's Christmas tree until Santa arrives in one of the Romulus Fire Department's big, red engines to perform the ritual tree-lighting.

Immediately following the ceremony, Santa Claus will hear the little children's wishes at the Romulus Progressive Hall (located on Ozga Road just north of Five Points).

Refreshments will be served.

Romulus Historical Society Prepares for the Holidays

As Friday, December 4 – the day of the City's annual Tree-lighting Ceremony, marking the "official" beginning of the holiday season here in Romulus – draws near, members of the Romulus Historical Society are working busily at our Historical Museum, decorating and arranging displays in preparation for the big event.

Since this year's festivities will be conducted in the City's new historic park beginning at 6:30 p.m., the Historical Society has decided to open the Museum an hour beforehand, at 5:30 p.m. – allowing early arrivals to come in out of the cold and, at the same time, enjoy a variety of displays whose themes center on holidays of yesteryear.

One of the Museum's featured displays will be several Christmas trees, each decorated with ornaments from a specific era. Three small, table-top trees will be showcased – one with ornaments from the 1920s; the second with decorations from the '30s and '40s; and the third with ornaments from the '50s and '60s – as well as a large tree decorated mostly with handmade ornaments from the 1880s.

Also on display will be a miniature train, a hand-sewn quilt from the 1880s, antique musical instruments, and – dating back to as long ago as 1885 – various types of sheet music featuring beautiful cover illustrations.

Visitors to the Museum won't want to come empty-handed, since, once again, the Society is accepting donations of new, unwrapped toys to place beneath the largest tree. These toys will be donated to the Romulus Goodfellows for distribution to the area's less fortunate children at Christmas.

After a pleasant hour of browsing, Museum visitors can go back out to the Park and join the others who have gathered around the enormous fir tree located between the gazebo and the corner of Hunt and Bibbins. There, beginning at 6:30 p.m., they can sing Christmas carols and await the arrival of Santa Claus.

Everyone in the community is urged to come out and attend this evening of neighborly, hometown fun. It's a great way to get into the holiday spirit. □
